

Strengthening California's Educated Workforce

California's private nonprofit colleges and universities are committed to preparing graduates with the critical skills needed to drive the 21st century economy. AICCU institutions award high percentages of degrees relevant to the needs of California's industries.

California's private nonprofit colleges and universities contribute daily to California's future workforce and economic success.